

FIRST FAMILIES OF TOLEDO POLONIA

Compiled by Rosemary A. Chorzempa

This an alphabetical list of about 300 families who immigrated to Toledo between 1866 and 1877, many of whom were considered the pioneers who, in 1875, founded St. Hedwig parish, the first Polish Catholic Church in Toledo. This information has been documented by contemporary sources, parish records from Poland and Toledo, Toledo City Directories, Lucas County death records, and immigration passenger records. Some information has been provided by genealogists whose ancestors are listed. Census records were used to find names, ages, addresses, but are not a reliable source for dates of immigration as this information was given many years after the immigration and often not remembered correctly. Common sense dictates that the census taker came when the husbands were at work and the wives may not have known the answers and took their best guess.

There is no doubt that many early immigrants are not on this list for many reasons. Some may have immigrated while past the age of giving birth to children, thus would not be in baptismal records. Some of their deaths may have gone unrecorded. They may have moved to another town or state. They may have been missed on the census. There are also many gaps in the parish records, or someone just forgot to record it. Not all deaths were recorded in the Lucas County civil records.
